

If you are a digital nomad, Costa Rica is your destination

September 17, 2021

If you belong to the select group of people who can work remotely, Costa Rica is an ideal destination for you to do business and enjoy. Why?

- We have the strongest democracy in Latin America.
- We are world leaders in environmental conservation.
- Our industries of tourism and hospitality are world class.
- We have fiber optic networks throughout the country and high air connectivity.
- Our cost of living is relatively lower than in many developed countries.
- In a few minutes, you can go from enjoying the beach to enjoying the mountain.

With our new laws, digital nomads can enjoy the following incentives:

- Legal residency in Costa Rica for one year, with the option to request an extension for another year, after having stayed in Costa Rica for a minimum of 180 days during the first year.
- Income tax exemption (this benefit will not apply to the beneficiary's family).
- Exemption from customs taxes to bring basic personal computer, technology, telecommunications, or similar equipment necessary for the beneficiary to carry out his/her work in the country.
- The beneficiary's foreign driver's license will be valid for driving in Costa Rica.
- Ease of opening bank accounts in Costa Rica's banks.

To be eligible, you must be a foreigner with a monthly income of at least US$3,000 or the average of the last twelve months equivalent to that sum. If you are traveling with family, your income must be of at least US$4,000. In either case, you must obtain a health insurance.
