

Overview

As your business crosses borders, you need a legal partner with extensive experience in trade and customs legal services. In Central America and around the world, Dentons Muñoz's Trade, WTO and Customs practice guides clients through a wide variety of legal and business issues related to international trade and commerce.

From free trade regimes to more constrictive markets, our team confidently advises manufacturers, service providers, exporters and importers wherever their business takes them. We also represent commercial agents in bilateral and multilateral trade negotiations and market access controversies. Organizations and individuals alike rely on us to protect their investments, including formal introduction, registration, distribution and repatriation.

Key services include:

- Navigating customs processes
- Operating under international trade agreements
- Drafting contracts and legal opinions
- Formalizing and performing agreements
